NECROLOGY

The following is a list of prominent men and women who have died since January 1, 1895. It will in many cases explain the absence of names which may be looked for in the biographical section of this book.

The names marked with a † are those of persons whose deaths became known to the editor after their biographies appearing in this volume were in type and too late for their elimination. The names of persons who were included in the first edition (1899-1900) of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, *but who have since died, are marked .

The figures following each name indicate the year of birth and death. Thus, 10-96 following the first name in this list indicates that Antoine Thomson d'Abbadie was born in 1810 and died in 1896, the figures representing 1800 being omitted in both cases.

Where the — (dash) appears, the year of birth or death, as the case may be, is not known.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

THE name and location of Boston University predetermined its character. Established in the heart of the literary metropolis of America, it could meet the just expectations of the public only by organising as a metropolitan university of the most advanced and comprehensive type. Its founders believed, with rare earnestness, that the highest of all educational ideals are the distinctively Christian, and that the distinctively Christian ideals, instead of isolating individuals or segregating classes, associate men and women in school, as in home and state and church. Accordingly they had the honor of organising the first university ever planned from the start and throughout with no individual disabilities or class discriminations on the ground of race, nationality, sex, or other heredity. As an expression of their faith, they gave to it at the start more than one and a half millions of dollars. They at once instituted a reform in professional training.

The University was the first in the United States to present in Theology, Law and Medicine uniform graded courses of instruction covering three scholastic years, and to require in each the full three years of study. It was also the first to establish a four-years' course in Medicine, and to reinstate the long-lost baccalaureate degrees in Medicine and Surgery. Its advanced standards and broad principles soon gave it a larger number of students in its three professional schools than were found in any other American university. They also attracted wide attention and interest in Europe. The National University at Athens and the Royal University at Rome, both newly reorganised on exceptionally liberal bases, entered into special agreements with the Boston institution for mutual co-operation. In this way the University gave an important impulse to the movement which later resulted in the establishment of an American School of Archæology in Athens, and, later still, one in Rome. See Thirteenth Annual Report of the University, pp. 5-17.

More than four thousand have already been graduated at the University, and among their names may be found those of eminent senators, governors, bishops and judges; metropolitan pastors, lawyers and physicians; editors and authors; founders of missions, college professors and presidents of universities, American and foreign. At the time of the annexation of the Hawaiian Republic four Boston University graduates were in the Islands, and of these one was the Minister of Foreign Affairs, another a Judge in the Supreme Court, the third the Deputy Attorney-General of the Republic, and the Fourth its Chief Marshal. Shortly after, another, residing in China, was called to the presidency of the Imperial University of Nankin. At the same date, as before and since, the gracious lady presiding in the American Legation in Berlin, Germany, was another graduate, the first American woman that ever won the rank of a Doctor of Philosophy.

Not an honorary degree has ever been conferred by the University. Persons desiring further information as to its history and its metropolitan advantages are invited to address

TUFTS COLLEGE

CHARTERED 1852. OPENED 1855.

ELMER H. CAPEN, A. M., D. D., LL. D., President

TUFTS College is one of the larger collegiate institutions and is distinguished for the broadness of the opportunities its courses afford for general and technical education. It received its name in honor of the donor of its site, Charles Tufts, but others aided generously in its founding and subsequent endowment. The scope of the College was broadened by the addition of scientific courses, technical and professional schools, and in 1892 the College was opened, in all its departments, to women on the same terms as to men. The College is governed by a Board of Trustees and a Board of Overseers.

ORGANIZATION

THE COLLEGE OF LETTERS, giving the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Philosophy, and for special courses in science and engineering Bachelor of Science, also the graduate degrees of Master of Arts, Doctor of Philosophy, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineer.

THE DIVINITY SCHOOL, with a course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL, in large new building on Huntington Avenue, Boston, with a course leading to the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

THE DENTAL SCHOOL, the same location as the Medical School, with a course leading to the degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine.

Full provision is made for laboratory work in the scientific branches.

THE SUMMER SCHOOLS of Chemistry, Biology, Mathematics and English furnish excellent opportunities for valuable vacation work in connection with the College courses, and also excellent facilities for teachers in secondary schools.

THE location of the College is four miles from Boston on the Boston & Maine Railroad. The Postoffice address is Tufts College, Mass. The fifteen College buildings and campus are on a commanding hill and occupy a tract of over 100 acres. Extensive and well appointed laboratories are provided for work in chemistry, drawing, shop-work, physics, engineering, and all scientific and technical subjects, and the Barnum Museum, with its excellent and complete zoological and botanical collections, adds largely to the efficiency of the biological laboratories in the same building. Dormitories are large, excellently arranged and furnished and are on the campus, near the chapel.

FOUNDED, 1891, BY ANTHONY J. DREXEL

FOR the promotion of education in Art, Science and Industry, and particularly for the extension and improvement of industrial education as a means of opening better and wider avenues of employment to young men and women. Open to both sexes on equal terms.

The Founder's gifts to the Institute amount to three million dollars, represented by one million dollars expended upon the buildings and two million dollars endowment, applied in maintaining the instruction. These gifts, with additional ones made by others, enable the Institute to offer instruction at extremely moderate and in some cases merely nominal rates. Evening classes greatly extend the usefulness of the Institute, and the Free Public Lectures and Concerts furnish opportunities for general culture to the public at large.

The large and beautiful Institute Building and its two annexes furnish excellent facilities. The Auditorium (seating 1500 persons) for concerts, etc., the Library of 26000 volumes, the Museum with specimens of all industrial and decorative arts; the lecture-hall, laboratories, studios, class-rooms, etc., are all arranged for useful service upon the most comprehensive scale.

The Institute is doing a great work and all its departments have a steadily increasing attendance. The large staff of officers of instruction and administration are educators and specialists of wide repute.

The New York Protestant Episcopal Public School

HISTORY

IN 1709, a School was opened in the City of New York "to teach the poor without charge, to instruct Dutch children in the English tongue, and to train up all in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." It was begun and carried on until the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, under the sanction and guidance of the Venerable Society in England for propagating the Gospel in Foreign parts, with the active co-operation and assistance of Trinity Church. Without interruption, except during the War of the Revolution, the School has continued to the present day; enlarging its sphere and modifying its methods with the progress of the community, but always adhering strictly to its fundamental purpose of combining with, and making a necessary part of, any and every course of study it might provide, Christian teaching and Church training. In 1800, it received a grant of real and personal estate from Trinity Church, and, subsequently, in the early part of the Century, came into possession of certain lands in the eastern part of the City devised to it by the will of Dr. John Baker. It became an independent Corporation by Act of the Legislature of the State of New York in 1806; and under the Corporate name of "The New York Protestant Episcopal Public School," conferred by amended Charter of 1827, now conducts two schools: one for boys, styled "Trinity School"; and one for girls, entitled "St. Agatha."

FOR BOYS

UNDER the management of the Reverend August Ulmann, D. D., assisted by a corps of from twenty to twenty-five Masters and Teachers, occupies a commodious and well equipped School House, built for it by the Trustees in 1891, at 139-147 West 91st Street, and is thoroughly organized throughout for the instruction of boys from six to eighteen years of age, or until they are ready for college or business. It is one of the leading Schools of the City in numbers and effectiveness; and instructs annually from 360 to 400 pupils, many of them gratuitously, and the rest at moderate rates of tuition.

The School prepares boys for all the Colleges and Scientific Schools, and has been eminently successful in this work. It forms a part of the University of the State of New York, and its Diploma entitles the holder to an Academic Certificate from the Regents of the University.

The Board of Trustees, at its annual meeting, determines the number of "Scholarships" for the year, which entitle the incumbents to tuition without charge, being, however, conditioned upon good behavior and efficiency. All applications for admission should be made in the first instance to the Rector of the School.

The New York Protestant Episcopal Public School

ST. AGATHA
FOR GIRLS

THIS school was established by the Trustees in September, 1898, and placed in charge of Miss Emma G. Sebring, A. M., as Principal, under whose care, with the aid of some twelve or fourteen associated Teachers, it has been carried on with remarkable efficiency and acceptance. Designed to secure for Girls a benefit similar to that which Trinity School has for many generations conferred upon Boys, it has been thus far in its beginnings, but it has already accomplished permanent good and is steadily growing and extending its influence. When fully organized it will include a Course of two years in Kindergarten, eight in Elementary grades, and four in High School department, thus giving a thorough and continuous course of Study, covering a period of fourteen years, between the ages of four and eighteen. As at present organized it affords four Primary grades, four Grammar grades, and a High School department, and its work has been exceptionally efficient and valuable. The School has an attendance of between sixty and seventy pupils, about one-fifth of the number being educated gratuitously, or with partial remission of fees, and the rest on moderate terms. Applications for admission should be made to the Principal.

257 West 93rd Street,
NEW YORK.

ADMINISTRATION

Diocesan Schools of Bishop Whipple

SAINT MARY'S HALL

FARIBAULT, MINN.

Founded by Bishop Whipple, in 1866, is one of the best appointed and most thorough boarding-schools for young ladies in the country. It offers superior advantages for education, with an invigorating and healthful climate. It is under the personal supervision of the Bishop, with fourteen experienced teachers. A foreign teacher resides in the Hall, for daily conversation, as well as class instruction in French and German.

For Register, containing full information concerning the school, and for admission, address Saint Mary's Hall, Faribault, Minnesota.

Rt. Rev. H. B. WHIPPLE, D. D., LL. D., Rector.

Miss CAROLINE W. EELLS, Principal. Rev. E. S. PEAKE, Chaplain.

SHATTUCK SCHOOL

FARIBAULT, MINN.

Founded by Bishop Whipple, in 1865, is the oldest and best-organized school in the West, with an unusually strong faculty, and superior educational advantages. The beauty of the location and buildings, with one hundred and fifty acres of park, cannot be appreciated without a personal visit.

The military training is admirably adapted to the best interests of the school, and it has the unqualified approval of the United States Government.

The beautiful Shumway Memorial Chapel is the centre of the moral and religious instruction and influence. The standard of scholarship is high. The training and discipline give boys invaluable benefits not found in day schools. They are held more closely to their work, their classes are smaller, they are taught how to study, are trained physically, mentally and morally, and are prepared for either college or business. The certificates of graduation admit to many colleges without examination. The catalogue, containing information of every kind that parents desire, will be sent on application to the Rector.

Rt. Rev. H. B. WHIPPLE, D. D., LL. D., President.

Rev. JAMES DOBBIN, D. D., Rector.

SEABURY DIVINITY SCHOOL

FARIBAULT, MINN.

Is situated in the clear, tonic air of Minnesota—an atmosphere destructive to malaria and pulmonary diseases — in a park of twenty-five acres commanding a beautiful prospect.

Bishop Whipple's words, spoken in the beginning of its career, ring as clear to-day as they did then: "The age demands much of the Church. It must have profound scholarship, great-hearted loyalty and charity, and must not, by any possibility, allow her true position to be narrowed into limits which will surely create parties."

The history of the School has been marked by a healthy development in sound learning and wide scholarship. No effort is spared to place its work upon an equality with the best which the Church can furnish. Much care is given to the devotional life, as furnishing the true foundation of ministerial power and efficiency.

Rt. Rev. H. B. WHIPPLE, President. Rev. ALFORD A. BUTLER, Warden.

SCHOOLS FOR GIRLS

CARE OF THE SISTERS OF ST. MARY

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, 6 and 8 East Forty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, N. Y.

ST. MARY'S, which was the first school of the Sisterhood, has been in active operation for a third of a century. Its Primary, Preparatory, and Collegiate Departments take the child at earliest school age and train her mentally toward thorough preparation for the best colleges; ethically, by moulding the character and awakening reverence for God and loyalty to the Church; physically, by congenial, healthful surroundings, and careful attention to health.

There is a full corps of experienced instructors, with classes sufficiently small to insure individual attention; and appointments for 150 pupils, of whom 25 are resident. The 500 graduates from 1870 to 1900 include women of distinguished social standing and intellectual attainments, leaders in journalism, teaching, the professions; and wives of army and navy officers, and of men of note and worth. Daughters and near relatives of three Columbia University professors are graduates or present pupils.

For about ten years past St. Mary's graduates have entered Barnard, Vassar, or Wellesley. Advanced courses in Languages, English Literature, Art Culture and Music are offered for students desiring to cover more general ground than the College Preparatory.

For particulars address: THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

ST. GABRIEL'S SCHOOL, [FOUNDED 1872] PEEKSKILL, N. Y.

IS situated in wooded grounds of about fifty acres occupying an eminence overlooking the town of Peekskill (forty-one miles north of New York) and commanding views of the Hudson River, The Highlands, and the country for miles around. The buildings meet every requirement of health, comfort and convenience, and the environments are conducive to physical, mental and spiritual well-being. The Home Life is comfortable and sympathetic, and the religious training accords strictly with the Book of Common Prayer.

The methods and courses are suited to the development of a thorough and well-balanced Christian education. There is a Preparatory Department in three classes, for children over ten years of age, and an Academic Department, covering five years, in either the Classical, Scientific, or English Courses. Graduates are admitted to Wellesley on the school's certificate.

Advanced courses are offered for graduates who wish to return for an additional year of study.

The Departments of Art and Music are especially thorough. The Stuttgart Conservatory method of teaching is followed in the Music Department.

For particulars address: THE SISTER-IN-CHARGE.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, :: :: :: :: MEMPHIS, TENN.

FOR healthful and attractive location, St. Mary's School, at Memphis, Tenn., is widely and favorably known. It sustains the reputation for excellence of training and educational methods, for thoroughness, and for devotion to the best interests of each pupil committed to its charge, which strongly Characterizes all of the schools of the Sisters of St. Mary.

The school has four departments—Kindergarten, Primary, Grammar School, and Academic. In the latter are two Courses: The Classical and the Academic. In the Classical Course, Latin and Greek are required; in the latter, an equivalent amount of elective work.

The home life is refined and cultured, and all pupils receive, at the hands of the Sisters, a training in Christian living according to the spirit of the Book of Common Prayer.

Northern Churchmen desiring to send their daughters South for the Winter, without loss of educational advantages, will find special attractions at St. Mary's School.

For particulars address: THE SISTER-IN-CHARGE.

KEMPER HALL, :: :: :: : ;: :: KENOSHA, WIS.

THIS institution, which received its name as a memorial to the first Missionary Bishop of the American Church, was first opened in 1870. In 1878, the Sisters of St. Mary were invited to assume charge of it, and in 1886 they became its trustees.

It includes a Primary Department, a Preparatory Department, and a Collegiate Department; and in the latter, three Courses: the Classical, the Scientific, and the English, are offered. The school certificate admits to Vassar and to Wellesley.

The Courses are thorough, the corps of instructors ample, and the training of pupils is such as to impart not only a sound education, but also to form such habits of mind and character as will enable a girl throughout life to grasp and use what she learns. The home life and religious training of the school, the provisions for health and physical culture, are of the highest class.

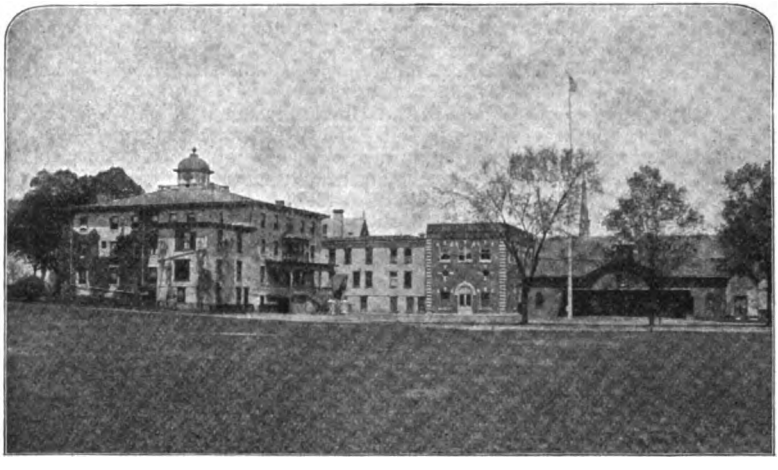
Mount Pleasant Military Academy

OSSINING, N. Y.

THIS Academy was established in 1814 to provide in Sing Sing (now Ossining) a school of the best order, where young men might be prepared for College and University, or for active business life. It has always maintained a high standard calculated to elevate character and manliness and has enjoyed continuous prosperity and popularity.

The location of the school is at one of the most beautiful spots on the banks of the scenic Hudson. The buildings are the Junior Hall (stone) erected 1832; the brick building called Senior Hall, built 1864, and the more recently erected Library Building, Drill Hall and Gymnasium. All are commodious and well appointed and are excellent in sanitary equipment and condition. There are also new and modern Sick-Rooms, isolated from the rest of the School, built in 1899, and a Senior Cottage, opened in 1899.



The School only invites as pupils boys of correct morals, and the idle and unruly are not permitted to remain. A high tone and fine spirit characterize the school, its discipline is firm, but kindly, its military training developes physical health and strength, neatness, obedience, order, punctuality, system and self-control, an erect and graceful carriage, and gentlemanly manners.

The Home Life is that of a pleasant, Christain home, with training in correct social usages.

The Lower School covers two years, intended to prepare younger boys for the Upper School.

The Upper School covers four years and is designed especially to prepare boys for entrance into the most advanced colleges and technical schools. Its scholastic record is exceptionally excellent; its graduates honor it by successful careers in the best colleges and in after life.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY

CORNELL UNIVERSITY was founded in 1865 by the combined bounty of the National Government and of Ezra Cornell. Its policy has always been shaped by Mr. Cornell's happy phrase, "I would found an institution where any person can find instruction in any study." It has been especially fortunate in the rich personality, varied intellectual interests, and wide culture of the benefactors, presidents, and teachers who have shaped its life.

The property of the University is now about $11,000,000, mainly derived from an investment in Western timber lands conceived by Ezra Cornell and carried out by him and by Hon. Henry W. Sage. Ezra Cornell's own gifts amounted to $750,000, Henry W. Sage's to $1,250,000 and John McGraw, Hiram Sibley, Andrew D. White, Hiram W. Sibley, Dean Sage, A. S. Barnes, William H. Sage, Oliver H. Payne, and John D. Rockefeller have made gifts ranging from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

The whole number of teachers in the University for 1900-1901 was 366, the total registration 3,073, of whom about 1,750 are from New York State, and 1,350 from 41 other states and territories in this country, and twenty foreign countries, representing every continent on the globe. More than 6,000 degrees have been granted by the University to its graduates.

The University library comprises about 250,000 volumes, and is endowed with book funds in excess of $300,000. The average annual growth of the library is in excess of 13,000 volumes.

Located on a bluff 300 feet high, looking for twenty miles down the windings of Lake Cayuga, and with grounds comprising 270 acres, Cornell has long been reputed the most picturesquely located University in the World.

Cornell University now comprises the following colleges and departments:

Graduate Department,	Degrees, A. M., Ph. D., etc.
Academic Department,	Degree, A. B.
College of Law,	Degree, LL. B.
Medical College (in New York and Ithaca),	Degree, M. D.

The University Preparatory School

FOUNDED 1892 — ITHACA, N. Y. — INCORPORATED 1895

IN its origin especially designed as a boys' fitting school for Cornell University. The curriculum has been broadened so as to fit for any college. It is especially adapted to the needs of those who have been attending High Schools and Academies where the curricula are not sufficiently comprehensive to meet the requirements of College entrance examinations; or those who have not been in attendance at any school for a considerable time and now wish a thorough and rapid preparation for College.

The system is so arranged that a pupil is never retarded by the slow progress of classmates, nor is he permitted to retard others. All branches found in the College requirements are included in the curriculum.

There are Day and Boarding Departments. The home life is comfortable and attractive, with full provision for recreation as well as for study.

The record of the School is such that, for the past five years, students holding its certificates have been admitted to the University without further examination, except a partial examination in English, from which no one is exempt.

There are Fall, Winter, Spring and Summer terms. The latter, extending from July to September, is especially adapted to those needing only a short finishing course previous to entering the University, or who have conditions to make up, or are preparing for competitive examinations for Cornell Freshman Scholarships.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL

CONCORD, N. H.

THIS School, conducted under Episcopalian auspices, and designed to prepare boys for the Freshman Class in University or College, was established and incorporated in 1855. The founder was George Cheyne Shattuck, M. D., and the first rector was Rev. Henry Augustus Coit, M. A. The school opened in 1856, with three boys, eight others coming during the year. There has been a steady growth in attendance, and the School Roll of 1900 showed 348 students, with 37 masters. The grant by Dr. Shattuck was originally fifty-five and one-third acres, and additions have been made, by purchase and building, until it now embraces 1,000 acres and 57 buildings.

Rev. Joseph Howland Coit, D. D., LL. D., who was Vice-Rector from March 2, 1865, has been Rector of the School since the death of his brother, the first Rector, February 5, 1895. Another brother, James Milnor Coit, Ph. D., is Clerk of the corporation and Natural Science Master, and Joseph Howland Coit, Jr., son of the first Rector, is also a Master in the School.

The School is divided into six Forms, of which the sixth is the highest; and there is also an Upper Remove, for the preparation of advanced subjects, or to make up deficiencies in previous work.

St. Paul's School has long occupied a position of unique distinction among American Preparatory Schools.

STANLEY HALL

A SCHOOL OF HIGH RANK FOR GIRLS

STANLEY HALL'S initial opening in September, 1890, has been succeeded by a steady growth until it has gained a place of unique distinction among the educational institutions of the Northwest. The seventh year the school opened in new buildings, one for the Home, and one for school purposes, both admirably adapted to their respective uses. They are located in one of the most delightful residence portions of Minneapolis, a beautiful American city, and a center of education and culture for a large portion of the Northwest.

Departments for work in all grades are included in the curriculm, and the work conforms to the best modern scholastic standards. Graduates of the four years' academic courses are prepared to enter the best colleges for women of the East, upon certificates from the school. To those not desiring to go so far from home, Stanley Hall offers two years of college work corresponding to the Freshman and Sophomore work of such colleges as Smith, Wellesley and Vassar. Besides the straight preparatory work for college, superior instruction in art and music is given. For the physical development of girls studying so hard, a well-equipped gymnasium with a thoroughly trained instructor, and fine facilities for outside games are furnished. Thus, with proper exercise, sustained mental work is possible.

It is the purpose of the school, that, with the physical and mental training so carefully given, each girl who enters the school shall also grow stronger in character, and take her place in the world a potent factor in its upbuilding.

DANA HALL SCHOOL

A BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
WELLESLEY . . . MASS.

In 1881, when the Preparatory Department of Wellesley College was discontinued, the Dana Hall School was founded by the Misses Eastman. It has continued, with undeviating success, the work of thoroughly preparing girls for college; and it has recently added a General Course for non-collegians, which includes more advanced work in Literature and the Languages, History, History of Art, and Science.

Wellesley, fifteen miles from Boston on the Boston & Albany Railroad, is placed by official statistics at the head of Massachusetts towns for healthfulness; and the surroundings of the school are full of beauty. Dana Hall and its cottages add to attractiveness of location the advantages of perfect ventilation and drainage, and the most excellent sanitary arrangements. The School playstead furnishes opportunities for basket ball and lawn tennis, while the excellent country roads present great attractions for walking or bicycle riding.

The School is lodged in a large private home, and there are also commodious cottages, rooms being arranged for one hundred and thirty resident pupils. The home life is that of self respecting discipline with all the refinements of a cultured Christian household.

The School is strictly undenominational, but the Bible is read daily and studied in weekly lessons.

Extensive improvements to the School premises are now being made. The Assembly hall, class rooms and music rooms are all especially commodious, and there is a large and fully equipped gymnasium.

While Dana Hall is successor to the Wellesley Preparatory School and in practice largely retains that character, the course is also a thorough preparation for all other women's and co-educational colleges. Pupils receiving certificates from Dana Hall are admitted without further examination at Wellesley, Smith, Vassar, Cornell and Mount Holyoke colleges.

The courses are comprehensive and admirably arranged, and as to the quality of instruction, high ideals have been set and closely adhered to. The faculty, headed by Miss Helen Temple Cooke, as principal, with Mrs. Harriet E. Page and Miss Jeannie Evans as associate principals, numbers twenty-five. The courses in Latin, Greek, Science and Mathematics are in charge of teachers trained in Wellesley College. The work in English is conducted by teachers trained in Radcliffe and Wellesley, and the French and German languages are taught by foreign instructors.

The School is particularly distinguished for its advanced work in languages and literature and its specially full courses in History of Art and History of Music. The School continues to improve wherever improvement seems possible and now has students not only from all parts of the United States, but also from Cuba and Honolulu, and from Germany, India and other foreign countries.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE

FOUNDED by Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Durant, to furnish a liberal education of the highest grade to young women; incorporated 1870; opened to students 1875; first degrees conferred 1878. The corps of instructors numbers eighty.

Located in its own extensive grounds of hill and meadow, bordering upon a small lake. There are two large halls of instruction and residence, eight smaller dormitories, a chapel, art building, music hall, chemical laboratory, observatory, several society houses, and other buildings. College is undenominational, but distinctively Christain. The Library has 52,000 volumes.

Requirements for admission, the same as those of the other leading colleges; courses thorough, with generous provision for electives. The degree of B. A. is given to all students who complete the regular college course of four years; of M. A. for one full year of graduate work.

MISS CAROLINE HAZARD, M. A., LITT. D., PRESIDENT

WELLESLEY COLLEGE, WELLESLEY, MASS.

The Allen English and Classical School

WEST NEWTON, MASS.

FOUNDED half a century ago under the distinguished direction of Horace Mann, this school has remained an exemplar of useful pioneer work on lines of educational progress. In it one of the first kindergartens in America was organized; the first gymnastic apparatus was used in it and the first normal school had its second home here, in 1848. Its more than 2,500 living alumni include people of marked distinction and useful achievement.

The school, which receives day and family pupils, boys and girls, covers all branches necessary for ample and thorough preparation for the great universities, for scientific schools, or for any professional and business pursuits. The elective system is freely used, and the school therefore covers the widest range of usefulness. The regular course is four years, and there is a junior school for those unprepared for the regular course. Individual instruction is the rule, since there are fewer than 7 pupils to each instructor. Boy pupils live in the families of the head masters, girls in the cultured home of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Allen. There is no herding in dormitories. ALBERT EDWARD BAILEY, A. B., and FRANK HOYT WOOD, A. B., Ph. D., both Harvard men, are head masters.

The school is beautifully situated in an attractive village, nine miles from Boston, and is in all respects an ideal of the best in school life and work

THE NEWARK SEMINARY

A Boarding and Day School for Girls

172 Clinton Ave. :: :: Newark, N. J.

THE Seminary was founded 1882 by Miss Anna Francis Whitmore, the present principal. It was for years located at 991 and 993 Broad Street, and removed April, 1901, to 172 Clinton Avenue, which was purchased by the Seminary for $50,000. It is a spacious building with excellent provision for school rooms, laboratories, gymnasium, and all scholastic departments, as well as for home accommodations for resident pupils and teachers.

The Seminary has Primary, Junior and Senior departments. Thoroughness is the distinctive feature, and graduates can enter Wellesley, Vassar, Smith and Cornell. The faculty consists of ten instructors, and the course covers: classical and modern languages and literature, history and science; elocution and æsthetic culture (under Homer B. Sprague, Ph. D., the well-known Shakespearean scholar); art, and music—the latter in charge of the faculty of the Newark College of Music. The gymnasium exercises are under supervision of Alfred Thayer, M. D., who is also medical director, and many physical defects have been cured or corrected in this gymnasium.

Pupils are under perfect supervision and thorough ethical training. The influence of the school is strongly religious, but non-sectarian.

Harvard University

HARVARD COLLEGE, founded in 1636, is the oldest of American institutions of learning. The College is now the name of a single department of Harvard University, although the government of the entire University is vested in the President and Fellows and Overseers of Harvard College.

The University now includes Harvard College, the Lawrence Scientific School and the Graduate School, under the control of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, and the six professional schools: The Law School, Divinity School, Medical School, Dental School, School of Veterinary Medicine and the Bussey Institution (a School of Agriculture and Horticulture). The professional schools graduate students with their appropriate degrees; and the Faculty of Arts and Sciences confers the Degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Master of Arts, Doctor of Philosophy, and Doctor of Science. The Degrees of Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Divinity, and Master of Arts, honoris causa, are conferred upon eminent persons selected by the Corporation and approved by the Overseers.

Besides the departments enumerated the University has several important branches, such as the Astronomical Observatory; the University Museum (including the Museum of Comparative Zoology and its Natural History Laboratories), the Botanical and Mineralogical Museums, the Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology; the Semitic Museum, the Anatomical Museum, the Botanic Garden; the Arnold Arboretum; the Gray Herbarium, the Chemical Laboratory, Jefferson Physical Laboratory and the Veterinary Hospital.

Its libraries and facilities cover the widest range of opportunity for general and special study, with courses to meet every need of those seeking a sound collegiate education, and means for specialization which are particularly attractive to those desiring to carry on original research in any branch of scholarship, science or professional investigation.

From the University have been graduated more than twenty thousand students, and it has about half that number of living alumni. Among its graduates, living and dead, are included names distinguished in American progress as representative of the best ideals of public life, of professional skill, of scientific research and literary excellence.

Its present organization sustains the prestige of its past history. Detailed information in regard to the University is furnished by various pamphlets, which can be procured on application to the Corresponding Secretary.

The University of Chicago

Founded by JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

THE University of Chicago was founded in 1891, and opened its doors to students October 1, 1892. During the ninth year of its history it enrolled more than thirty-six hundred students in its collegiate and graduate departments and two hundred in its preparatory school, thus taking its place among the largest institutions of the country. In the number of its graduates, pursuing the most advanced courses of study, it surpassed all other Universities in America.

The University is located on the Midway Plaisance between Washington and Jackson Parks in the South Division of the City of Chicago. The campus comprises more than fifty acres, having a frontage of six blocks on the Plaisance, and extending North from Fifty-ninth to Fifty-sixth Street, a distance of over nineteen hundred feet, or three-eighths of a mile

Prior to the first of January, 1902, about $3,000,000 had been expended in buildings and equipments on the University campus. In addition, there were buildings at Morgan Park for the use of the preparatory school costing $140,000, and there had been expended in building and equipping the Yerkes Observatory at Lake Geneva, Wis., more than $300,000. The grounds of the institution at these places had an aggregate value of about $1,700,000.

The endowments of the University, on July 1, 1901, exceeded $6,000,000

The founder of the institution had then contributed to the institution more than $8,000,000.

Women are admitted to all departments and form more than one-third of the students

The University conducts its work throughout the entire year, there being four quarters of twelve weeks each, beginning July 19, October 1, January 1, and April 1. Students are permitted to enter at the beginning of any quarter and take their vacation in any quarter. Convocations are held at the close of each quarter, and at each convocation classes are graduated.

University extension is a distinct division of the work of the institution, and more than $40,000 is annually expended in this department. The University of Chicago Press is also an important part of the University. The Journals are regularly issued under the editorial management of the different faculties.

It is the purpose of the President, Dr. W. R. Harper, and the trustees, to add to the scope of the University, as soon as practicable, advanced schools of Law, Medicine and Engineering. The first two years of the Medical course are already given.

Adelphi Normal Courses | Adelphi Academy

Lafayette Avenue, St. James Place and Clifton Place

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Brooklyn, famous everywhere as a "City of Churches," deserves equal distinction as a city of schools and homes, wherein students are surrounded by all moral and educational advantages. Its leading collegiate institution is Adelphi College, which was incorporated by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, June 24, 1896, and whose degrees of classical, literary and scientific courses, bear the seals of both the College and the University of the State.

The Normal Course Curriculum and Pedagogical Options are included among the options of the Junior and Senior College years, so that students who wish to become teachers may include all their professional training in their work for a degree, and upon graduation may be admitted directly to the final examinations for either State or City licenses—(Kindergarten, Elementary or High School.) There are ample laboratory and library facilities, a gymnasium and a playing field. Special facilities are provided for all teachers who wish to study for a degree. All courses are open to both sexes on equal terms. There are eighteen professors in the faculty and eleven additional instructors, Charles H. Levermore, Ph. D., being President of the Faculties. In 1901 over 400 students were enrolled in Adelphi College and its affiliated professional schools.

The preparatory department of the College is the Adelphi Academy, which offers a complete primary and secondary education and a thorough preparation for any college. About 800 students are in attendance. The Art School, the oldest Art School in New York City, and one of the best in the country, is under the direction of John Barnard Whittaker.

The Adelphi School of Musical Art, which was affiliated with Adelphi College in 1899, is under the supervision of Dr. Henry G. Hanchett. It presents three distinct musical courses—the Academic, Collegiate, and Professional—each standing for the highest grade of work in its field.

The Pennsylvania College of Music

1511 GIRARD AVENUE, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MISS KATE H. CHANDLER, the founder, still remains at the head of the Institution. The Directors are well known business and professional men.

It is well situated on one of the broadest Avenues of Philadelphia, midway between the business and residence sections. The property is owned by the President. Twenty-two rooms are devoted to the work. Its faculty numbers twenty. The instruction is intensely personal—classes being divided into small sections.

FOUNDED IN 1888;
INCORPORATED FIRST IN 1891;
LATER, IN 1900.

Instruction is given in every department of Music, Modern Languages, Elocution and Physical Culture.

Upon completion of respective courses, degrees are conferred and certificates granted, subject to sanction of Directors

The Commonwealth Avenue School

A Home and Day School for Girls

AN institution which ranks in the highest class among girls' schools. It was established September, 1882, by the Misses Hannah E. and Julia R. Gilman, now associate principals, and is under the personal supervision of Miss Fanny C. Guild, Acting Principal, who has had extended experience in private and preparatory school work.

Two Courses are Offered:

THE COLLEGE PREPARATORY COURSE meets the requirements for admission to the best colleges.

THE GENERAL COURSE is designed to give a broad and liberal education to students not contemplating a college course, and offers advanced work to those who have completed a high school or an academic course.

The department of modern languages is in charge of competent foreign instructors assisted by American teachers, and is exceptionally thorough. The course in the History of Art prepares for intelligent foreign travel and the appreciation of works of art.

The aims of the school have always been high scholarship and thorough work. Each pupil receives careful individual attention. The number of home pupils is limited to twelve, and the home life is such as to develop the highest type of womanhood.

The school is situated on the finest avenue in the city, within five minutes' walk of the Back Bay Park, and all of the surroundings are conducive to the highest physical and educational welfare of pupils.

New England Conservatory of Music

Franklin Square, BOSTON, MASS.

THE Conservatory System of Musical Instruction was introduced into America in 1853, by Dr. Eben Tourjee. The Providence Conservatory of Music, which he established, was afterward removed from Providence, R. I., to Boston, and was incorporated as the New England Conservatory of Music in 1870. Dr. Tourjee was its director until his death, in 1891. Mr. Carl Faelten followed from 1891 to 1897, since which year it has been directed by Mr. George W. Chadwick, the distinguished American conductor and composer.

Located in magnificent premises, which, with recent additions, represent an outlay of nearly one milllon dollars, the Conservatory has every requisite for all of the departments of instruction. It also includes an inviting home for about three hundred women students.

The Conservatory has a faculty of fifty-six members and about two thousand students annually. Its courses cover all departments of vocal and instrumental music, musical composition, theory, harmony, etc., as well as related branches, including piano tuning, elocution and oratory, and modern languages. Its certificates and diplomas represent a thorough education in the branches covered by them, and its alumni are leading representatives of musical training and musical teaching all over this and other countries.

FRYE PRIVATE SCHOOL

Preparatory for Colleges, Professional and Technical Schools; also for Junior Classes for Children.

THIS School for boys, founded eight years ago by the late Caleb B. Frye, is now headed by La Roy F. Griffin, A. M., as principal, and Mrs. Ellen C. Frye, widow of the founder, as associate principal, aided by an able corps of instructors.

THE COURSES INCLUDE: A thorough and systematic course for students intending to enter Harvard, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, or any technical school; courses specially adapted as preparation for Medical and Dental Schools; facilities for special students wishing to pursue one or more studies. The junior class admits girls as well as boys. A Commercial course is planned for the coming year, which will give thorough preparation for business life.

All courses are elective, and the School pursues a plan of special classification and individual instruction which enables the pupil to secure a thorough preparation for the college, etc., in the shortest possible time. Professor Griffin is an experienced educator, formerly for twelve years professor of physics and chemistry at Lake Forest University; and under his management, with enlarged facilities and perfected methods, the Frye School has earned enviable distinction.

The principal takes a limited number of boys into his family, and good, comfortable boarding places in accredited families will be found for other non-resident students.

Haverford College Grammar School

THE aim of the HAVERFORD COLLEGE GRAMMAR SCHOOL from the start has been to bring together all the surroundings and influences most favorable to the development of power and character in boys. To this end no expense has been spared to provide a faculty of rare teaching ability, an unsurpassed equipment, and a home of such comfort and beauty as schools rarely offer. A school thus planned cannot offer low terms, but it merits the careful personal investigation of parents who desire the best for their sons.

Dr. Holbrook's Military School

Historical Founded 1866, by Rev. D. A. Holbrook, Ph. D. (died December, 1898.) In 1890 he associated his sons Dudley and Henry in the management. In September, 1899, Dwight Holbrook, who had been twenty-one years principal of the Morgan School, in Connecticut, became associated with his brothers in carrying on the school.

Location. About thirty miles from New York on Briar Cliff, a hill overlooking the Hudson, one mile from the village of Ossining (formerly Sing Sing) N. Y. The school grounds cover 24 acres. Besides the old building, a substantial brick structure, entirely remodeled in 1897, a new brick building 120 x 40 feet, three stories high, has been erected; to be occupied in the fall of 1901.

Military Discipline The Military feature of the school is intended to train pupils in habits of order, prompt obedience, physical development, neatness and uniformity. The military feature is always subordinated to the academic purposes of the school.

Courses of Study The general course is graded in six Forms, the first two comprising the Lower School and the other four the Upper School. In the latter are three separate courses—the Classical, Latin-Scientific and English-Scientific—the completion of either of which entitles a pupil to a diploma. Princeton and Yale examinations are conducted at the school.

Home Life and Recreation The home life of the school is happy and sympathetic, tending to develop kindly and manly qualities. Proper attention is paid to athletic games and gymnastic exercises. The school is characterized by an excellent spirit. Its health record is exceptionally good.

Results The alumni of this school include men of success and distinction in business and the professions throughout the country.

THE NEW YORK HOMEOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE AND HOSPITAL

THIS institution, of over forty years' standing offers to the student of medicine unexcelled courses, both didactic and clinical. A four-years' graded course, from October to May of each year, is so arranged that the clinical element gradually becomes more prominent until the last year, which is altogether practical. The college building, together with the Surgical and Medical divisions of the Flower Hospital, situated on the Eastern Boulevard, between 63rd and 64th Streets, Manhattan, New York, have been built within the last eleven years and are modern in all respects. During the past twelve months 4002 patients have been treated in the hospital; the ambulance has answered 1564 calls; the Out-patient Department, housed in a new building, showed nearly 12,000 separate visits, and the Out-patient Physician made 4670 visits to patients at their homes. All this wealth of material is utilized for the clinical and individual instruction of students.

Weekly clinics are held at the Ophthalmic Hospital (over 15,000 new cases yearly), the Laura Franklin Hospital for Children and the Metropolitan Hospital (700 beds), and form a part of the curriculum.

RUSH MEDICAL COLLEGE

IN AFFILIATION WITH THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Organized 1837

THE academic year of Rush Medical College is divided into four quarters, corresponding with those recognized by the University of Chicago. They are designated as Summer, Autumn, Winter and Spring Quarters, beginning respectively the first of July, first of October, first of January, and first of April, each continuing for twelve weeks. A recess of one week occurs between the end of each quarter and the beginning of the next following. Instruction in all departments of medicine will be given in each Quarter. The general course of instruction requires four years of study in residence, with a minimum attendance upon three Quarters of each year. Instruction is given in two capacious, well lighted edifices. One is devoted to Clinics, Didactic Lectures, and practical courses in Manual Training, in Manipulation, in the use of the various Instruments employed in Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics and the Specialties. The other building contains five Laboratories, in which are conducted Practical Laboratory Courses in Anatomy, Physiology, Histology, Chemistry, Materia Medica, Therapeutics, Pathology and Bacteriology. A new building for Clinical Instruction exclusively is being erected adjacent to the other buildings.

JEFFERSON MEDICAL COLLEGE

THIS celebrated college, which begins the work of its 77th year October 1, 1901, has borne an important part in the development of the medical sciences. Many of the most distinguished physicians of America, dead and living, received professional training within its walls. At the session of 1900-1901 the college had 100 members of its faculty and teaching staff (exclusive of the hospital staff), and had 736 students, from 46 states and territories and eight foreign countries.

The hospital of the college, which contains 140 beds and also has an out patient department treating over 300 cases daily, provides a wealth of clinical material seldom equaled anywhere in the world. The new buildings, completed in 1899, are admirably appointed, the laboratories are thoroughly equipped and the curriculum for the four-year course represents the most modern ideas in medical education and all of the advantages of progress in teaching and clinical methods.

There are numerous prizes and hospital appointments which are annually conferred upon graduates of the college.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN

THIS Institution was founded January 19th, 1826, in New York City; its object being "the cultivation and extension of the arts of design." It is under the exclusive control and management of professional artists.

Its Schools have been in continuous operation since 1825. On their rolls of students are the names of nearly all eminent American artists. Their endowment enables them to offer the best facilities for study as well as money prizes and medals for the encouragement of students.

The Annual Exhibitions, dating from 1826, have been a leading factor in the development of American art. Their Clarke, Hallgarten, Suydam and Inness prizes and medals are distinctions properly coveted by exhibitors.

The membership list, limited to one hundred Academicians and one hundred Associates, includes the names of the most eminent and representative American painters and sculptors.

THE VIRGIL PIANO SCHOOL and School of Public Performance

29 West 15th St.
New York, N. Y.

THIS school was organized September, 1891, and has won a world-wide reputation through the remarkable public playing of its pupils.

It was the first school in America to make a specialty of the piano and its accessories, viz., Ear Training, Time Keeping, Sight Playing and Harmony. To-day it is the largest institution of its kind in the world.

The Tekniklavier [a practice instrument with clicks instead of musical tones] is used for all technical practice and for memorizing. Its use compels intellectual effort, developes concentration, while affording a magnificent means for acquiring a perfect and positive technic, and it is therefore of the greatest benefit to all students and especially to those who wish to acquire the ability to play publicly.

The teachers of this institution are graduates who have received the most liberal training in the Virgil Method which is exclusively employed. It has a staff of twelve teachers.

A PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR BOYS

This School, founded 1863, and ever since conducted by Henry W. Siglar, A. M. (Yale), is favorably situated as regards natural scenery and healthfulness, and well equipped in every respect.

The Siglar School is limited to thirty boys, and provides them with such a home and bringing-up as all boys that go to college ought to have. The system is in some respects unique. So are the results. Out of 85 boys prepared for college prior to 1900 three-fourths passed their entrance examinations without conditions. Of fifty who entered Yale 44 were graduated. The scholastic, professional and business records of the Siglar boys are exceptionally excellent.

The terms are $500 per year; no extras.
